Background and Details: (U) On 18 April 2023, a protest was organized on the campus of the University of Pittsburgh in order for people to voice their displeasure with guest speaker Michael Knowles. During the protest, several people in the crowd began attempting to disrupt the event. An effigy of Knowles was burned, smoke bombs were thrown, and a "mortar" style firework was thrown at police officers. University of Pittsburgh Police Detectives were able to identify two suspects whom may have thrown one or more of the devices. They are known to law enforcement as Brian and Krystal DiPippa.
